

Tulip Poplar Bark Basket Workshop

Rolling Ridge Study Retreat Community near Harpers Ferry, WV

June 1, 2019 10:00 am – 3:00 pm

$45 per person *15 participant max

Bark baskets have an ancient history in forested landscapes all over the world. There is a short window between May and June in this region when Tulip Poplar bark can be “slipped” from the tree and fashioned into a basket. These baskets are easily assembled given a knowledge of the materials and a patient hand. Learn how to identify, select and transform a Tulip Poplar tree into your own berry basket. Each student will leave the class having made their own basket from pre-cut logs. If time allows the teacher may also demonstrate how to turn Tulip Poplar inner bark into basket weavers for woven baskets.

Luke Bauer made his first basket in 2013. He is a basket maker, forager, woods wanderer, and permaculturist interested in connecting people with their landscape.

What to bring:

A good sharp and sturdy knife (there will be a few available for use)

Lunch and snacks

Water bottle

*Children are welcome to participate but must be accompanied and supervised by an adult.

Register at www.rollingridge.net/events/

